Gold was quiet, and the Room is now devoid of all speculative life. Barring exceptional sales at 112½, all the business was at 111 1/2 to 112. Loans cost 3 3/4, and 4 per cent for carrying to flat. London advices were unimportant, reporting securities firmer. The Bank of England gained £47,000 in billion to day. There were 16 bids for the Treasury gold, aggregating $2,455,000, at 111 3/4 to 111 1/2. The accepted bids were at the quotations:

There is no change to note in money, and call loans are reported at 3 and 4 per cent, and prime discounts in ready inquiry at 5 1/2%. There is no change in the legal tender circulation.

Government bonds have been quiet on the smallest kind of business. The market was steady and closed on the basis of 110 1/2 to 111 1/2 for 1867. We are quoting the following closing quotations:
